Acknowledgements

This research is sponsored by the Commonwealth of Kentucky, which designated the Urban Studies Center as the State's official source of demographic research and service. The Urban Studies Center and the University of Louisville gratefully acknowledge the network of support that makes these services possible, including that of the State's Office of Policy and Management and the State's Health and Vital Statistics Office.

Acknowledgements also are due to several Urban Studies Center staff members, whose collective efforts made this report possible. They are: Vernon Smith and Shirley Demos, for research support; Sam Samnick, Al Nash, and Richard Lichvar, for technical assistance; and, Betsy Jones and Sharon Hall, for report production. The author expresses special thanks to Douglas Nunn, for his editorial guidance and dedication to this program.

Appendix: Methodology 149

Introduction

This report presents new official population forecasts for the Commonwealth of Kentucky, its 15 Area Development Districts, and its 120 counties. These population projections are the latest in a series produced by the Urban Studies Center to be used uniformly in State policy and planning development.

The Population Research Unit of the Urban Studies Centers tracks and analyzes major demographic trends throughout the state with census data, vital statistics, and other social indicators. Its population forecasting is based on analyses of historical and current demographic patterns at the local, state, and national levels.

Three major sections are contained in this report. The first presents a descriptive overview of the major demographic patterns expected to emerge throughout the Commonwealth.

The secord presents detailed population projections for the state, Area Development Districts, and counties. In addition to the 1980 census counts, projections are given for 1985, 1990, 2000, 2010, and 2020. Populations are broken down by five-year age groups through 85 years and over, gender, and two racial categories (white and nonwhite). Population pyramids for 1980, 1990, and 2000 also are shown for each geographic unit.

The final section describes the methodology and assumptions. These projections use a standard cohort-component technique with separate assumptions about future levels of fertility, mortality, and net migration. Fertility and net migration assumptions are county-specific. Mortality assumptions are based on national patterns.

If projections are needed in more detail than that provided in this report, contact the State Data Center at the Urban Studies Center. Population projections are also available annually, 1980-2020, and by single year of age.

State Summary

The number of Kentuckians is forecast to exceed 4.7 million by the year 2000. This represents a projected growth rate of 29.6 percent from 1980. The United States is projected by the Census Bureau to grow by 18.1 percent during the same period. The state's projected growth is based on assumptions of high net in-migration and birth rates slightly higher than national rates over the next two decades.

Kentucky's high rate of population growth experienced during the 1970-80 decade is expected to continue through the remainder of the century. During the 1970s, the state's population grew by 13.7 percent. This growth is expected to accelerate to 15.2 percent from 1980 to 1990 and then moderate to 12.6 percent during the 1990s.

Migration is assumed to be increasingly more important in determining population growth in the state. See Figure 1 below. Before 1970, Kentucky experienced moderate population growth, despite incurring net out-migration. High natural increase, the excess of births over deaths, more than made up for the population loss through migration. However, during the 1970s, net inmigration pushed the state's growth rate upward, despite the lowest rate of natural increase since 1900. Net in-migration accounted

Kentucky's Projected Population

Year	Population
1980 (Census Count)	3,660,777
1985	3,909,081
1990	4,215,927
2000	4,746,164
2010	5,143,652

for approximately half of the growth during the 1970-80 decade. By 2000, net in-migration is expected to account for aproximately 60 percent of the state's total growth.

However, the rate of natural increase also should rise over the next two decades. Birth rates are expected to increase slightly from the historical lows recorded in the 1970's, then decrease after 1995. Moreover, in 1980, there were more persons aged 15 to 24 years than any other age group in the state. The large number of persons in their most fertile years, coupled with increased birth rates, will increase the number of births until the turn of the century.

In addition, life expectancy is assumed to rise, pushing the rate of natural increase even higher. Life expectancy for females is projected to rise from 78.2 years in 1980 to 81.0 years in 2000. For males, life expectancy also is assumed to rise from 70.6 years to 73.0 years.

Kentucky's population will become older. The median age is expected to rise from 29.1 years in 1980, to 32.0 years in 1990, to 34.8 years in 2000, and to 38.6 years in 2020. Over the 1980s, the population aged 65 years and over is forecast to increase by 22.7 percent. In contrast, persons aged 20 to 64 years should increase by 15.1 percent, and those aged less than 20 years by only 3.3 percent.

The state's nonwhite population is expected to increase faster than the white population. From 1980 to 2000, the number of nonwhites should increase by 41.9 percent. The white population should grow by 28.6 percent. The proportion of nonwhites is projected to rise from 7.7 to 8.9 percent. Nonwhites are assumed to continue to have higher net in-migration and birth rates than whites.

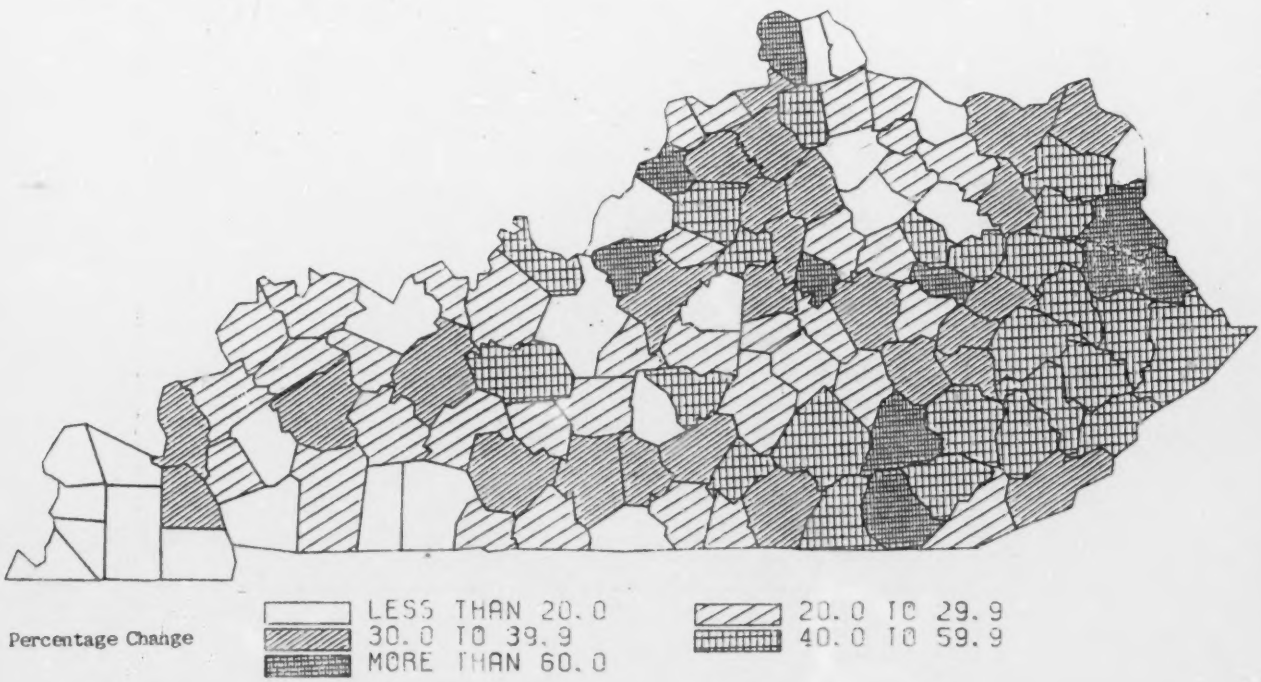
Projected Median Age
by Gender for Kentucky

Year	Total	Male	Female
1980	29.1	27.9	30.4
1990	32.0	30.6	33.4
2000	34.8	33.3	36.2
2020	38.6	37.0	40.1

Population growth is expected to be wide-spread throughout the Commonwealth. Outlying counties in metropolitan areas and more remote rural areas, in general, are forecast to grow the fastest. Net in-migration to rural Kentucky, established during the 1970s, is assumed to continue through the 1980s.

Birth rates in the state's rural areas have been historically higher than in its urban areas. This difference in fertility levels is assumed to continue, contributing to the higher projected growth in rural areas.

Projected Population Growth Rates in Kentucky's Counties, 1980-2000



Sub-State Summary

Redistribution of the state's population resulting from the growth during the 1970s is expected to continue through the year 2000. Growth will result in greater dispersal of the population since many areas of low population density will grow fastest.

High rates of growth are forecast for eastern and southeastern Kentucky. From 1980 to 2000, Big Sandy ADD is shown to grow fastest at 61.7 percent. Other ADDs in the regions also are expected to grow faster than the state as a whole. They are: Cumberland Valley (44.8 percent), FIVCO (30.4 percent), Gateway (37.6 percent), Kentucky River (47.5 percent), and Lake Cumberland (39.2 percent).

Bluegrass ADD and its Lexington metropolitan area also show growth rates higher than that for the state. Bluegrass ADD grows by 32.5 percent, a numeric increase of approximately 178,000.

However, northern and western Kentucky exhibit growth for the 1980-2000 period slower than that for the state. Purchase ADD shows the lowest rate of growth at 17.8 percent. KIPDA and Northern Kentucky, the state's most urban ADDs, grow by 19.3 percent and 23.4 percent, respectively. Buffalo Trace ADD grows by approximately 12,000, the state's lowest numeric increase.

Growth at the county level also shows greater dispersal of the population. While the state as a whole grows by 29.6 percent from 1980 to 2000, the average growth rate for counties is 34.0 percent. This indicates that many less populated counties will grow faster than more populated counties.

Oldham County and Bullitt County are expected to be the fastest growing counties through the end of the century. Each is expected to double in population.

Jefferson County grows by 9.0 percent, 1980-2000, the state's highest numeric increase of over 61,000. However, its share of the state's total population declines from 18.7 percent to 15.7 percent.

Fayette County keeps pace with the state growing by 28.6 percent. This represents an increase of over 48,000, the state's second highest.

Fulton County is the only county expected to decline in population by the year 2000, decreasing by 2.8 percent. Four other counties are forecast to grow by less than 10 percent. They are: Caldwell (6.7 percent), Campbell (5.7 percent), Hickman (5.0 percent), Jefferson (9.0 percent).

Ten counties will grow by over 60 percent, 1980-2000. They are: Boone (64.0 percent), Bullitt (101.9 percent), Jessamine (74.0 percent), Johnson (70.0 percent), Laurel (68.8 percent), Lawrence (60.5 percent), Martin (85.6 percent), Oldham (117.0 percent), Powell (66.6 percent), and Whitley (68.3 percent).

Lexington-Fayette is the only metropolitan area to grow as fast as the state as a whole. By 2000, the six county area will be over 420,000 population, an increase of 32.3 percent from 1980.

The Louisville metropolitan area will remain the state's largest with an expected population of 927,320 in 2000. This is an increase of approximately 148,000 from 1980, or 19.0 percent for the four county area.

Detailed Population Projections

The following section presents projection for the state, Area Development Districts, and counties. In addition to the 1980 census count, projections are given for 1985, 1990, 2000, 2010, and 2020. Projections are broken down by five-year age groups through 85 years and over, gender, and two racial categories (white and nonwhite).

Population pyramids for 1980, 1990, and 2000 also are shown for each geographical unit. These pyramids show the proportions of persons in each age/gender group and changes in the overall age structure.

Appendix: Methodology

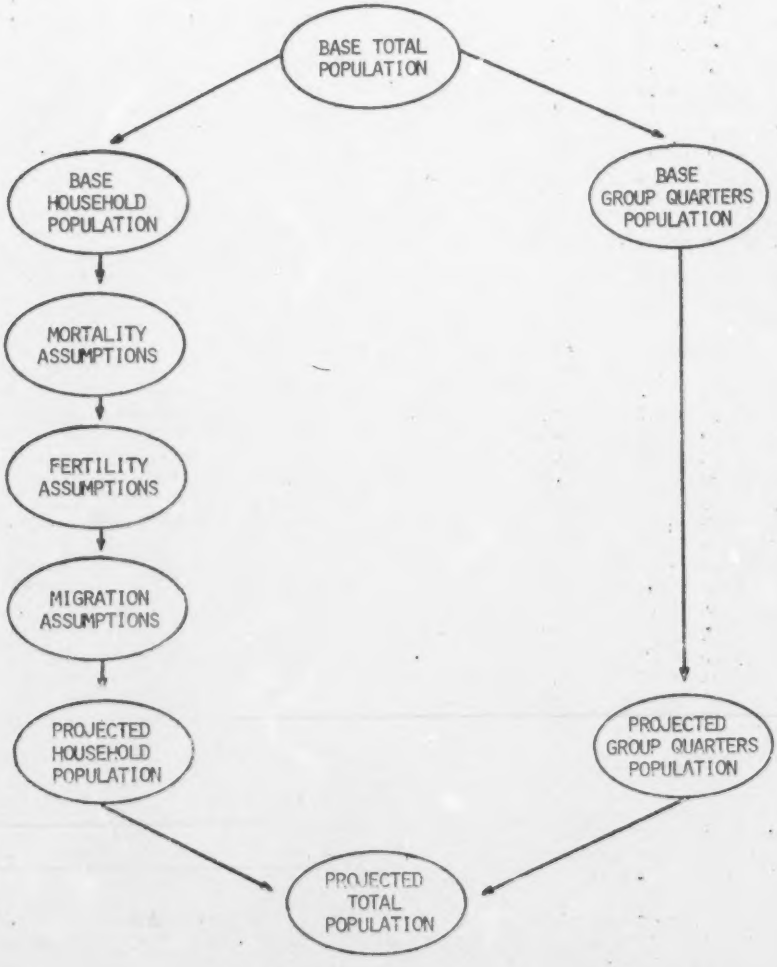
County projections were prepared using a cohort-component method whereby each component of population change--births, deaths, and net migration --are projected for each single year birth cohort. The cohort-component technique is used for only the household population in each county. The group quarters population is projected separately. The projected total population is derived by summing the projected household population and the projected group quarters population.

These projections begin with the April 1, 1980 census data for counties. Household and group quarters populations are broken down by single year of age through 85 years and over, gender, and two racial categories (white and nonwhite). The household population is survived annually by applying a national set of survival rates by age, gender, and race. Annual births for each county are derived by applying age-specific fertility rates to the survived female population. The "survived and new born" population then is adjusted by annual net migration rates.

Projecting the household population from April 1, 1980 to mid-year, July 1, 1981 required that a three-month adjustment be applied.

The group quarters population is held constant throughout the projection period.

KENTUCKY POPULATION PROJECTION METHODOLOGY



Mortality

Annual survivor rates by age, gender, and race for Kentucky are derived from national rates. Rates are adjusted annually to reflect the increase in survivorship projected by the Census Bureau. Rates increase gradually until the year 2000, then are held constant through the remainder of the projection period. The table below shows 10-year survival rates which represent the accumulated effect of the annual rates.

These projected survival rates are based on projections of population in 5-year age groups assuming no net immigration. These rates reflect projected survival rates by single year of age and the age distribution within each age group.

Fertility

Birth rates are assumed to increase slightly from the historical lows recorded during the 1970s until 1995, then decline. Assumptions for births are county and race specific. Five sets of projected age-specific fertility rates are used: low white fertility, moderate white fertility, high white fertility, nonwhite fertility, and extremely high fertility for all races.

Counties are classified by their level of white fertility—low, moderate, and high. Low fertility counties have shown white birth patterns below national levels. Moderate fertility counties have shown birth rates approximate to those of the nation. Ninety-nine counties have recorded birth rates higher than national patterns.

Christian County and Hardin County have shown fertility patterns that are extremely high due to the location of major military installations. Births are high for all races in these counties.

Separate projected fertility rates are applied to nonwhite females in all counties except Hardin and Christian.

Migration

Migration assumptions are based on county net migration estimates for the 1970-80 decade. These estimates were produced by a cohort-component technique with adjustments made for a under-count in the 1970 census, and are published in Kentucky Demographics, Number 9, June, 1983.

Ten-year estimates were converted to annual rates. Net migration rates are age and gender specific. For counties with more than 5,000 nonwhites, rates are also race specific.

The rates are held constant through the 1980's. Between 1990 and 2000 negative rates are converged to zero, and positive rates are reduced by half. Rates are held constant after the year 2000.
